

to Marjorie

Front cover: A pack train heads across the new Turner Street bridge to the gold fields north of town. This bridge replaced the $10,000 Cushman Street bridge after the 1905 flood. Pilings from the old waterfront and the remains of the old bridge can be seen on the left. Inset is a photograph of the man most old-timers believe to be E. T. Barnette, who founded Fairbanks and only a decade later was hounded out of his town.

(University of Alaska Archives, Charles Bunnell Collection)

Back cover: A gold train assembles in front of Captain Barnette's Fairbanks Banking Company.

(University of Alaska Archives, Charles Bunnell Collection)

Copyright ©1981 by Terrence Cole

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopying, recording or by any information storage and retrieval system, without written permission of Alaska Northwest Publishing Company.

Library of Congress cataloging in publication data
Cole, Terrence, 1953-

The strange story of the man who founded Fairbanks.

Bibliography: p.

Includes index.

1. Barnette, E. T. (Elbridge Truman) 2. Fairbanks (Alaska)—History. 3. Pioneers—Alaska—Fairbanks—Biography. 4. Fairbanks (Alaska)—Biography. I. Title.

PS14.F16B373 .079.8 6[B] 81-2452

ISBN 0-88240-134-8

AACR2

Design by Dianne Hofbeck

Alaska Northwest Publishing Company
Box 4-EEE, Anchorage, Alaska 99509

Printed in U.S.A.

Contents

Introduction	vii
1 The Curse of the Cleveland	1
2 The Lost Creek	13
3 The Captain and the Judge	25
4 The Strike	35
5 The Stampede	45
6 The Mayor of Fairbanks	61
7 The American Klondike	81
8 Ex-Convict	99
9 A White Horse and a Dark Night	119
Epilogue	139
Notes	143
Selected Bibliography	153
Index	157